HEMS & SON,
MANUFACTURING CUTLERS,
AND
FURNISHING IRONMONGERS,
23, ALDGATE, and 39, WHITECHAPEL.

Established 1799.

HEMS and SON, in returning their grateful thanks to their Customers and the Public generally, for their extensive and increasing patronage, which they have been favoured with for nearly fifty years, and which they hope, by punctuality, by civility, and by vigilant attention still to merit; nevertheless are yet desirous of extending their connection, and are therefore determined, in conducting their Business, to sell ONLY such goods as they can warrant, and at such prices as will ensure to them a quick sale. H. and S. do not profess to sell what is so inappropriately called "a CHEAP article," but a GOOD one at a low price, so that they may have the pleasure of seeing their Friends again and again.

HEMS and SON invite the inspection of their Friends to a Catalogue of the prices of many of their articles, which, on comparison with lists furnished by other houses, will be found to be considerably under what is usually charged.

A CATALOGUE, &c.

TABLE CUTLERY.

HEMS and SON'S Table Cutlery has been distinguished for its excellence for very nearly half a century. Their plan has invariably been to sell only such as may be depended upon. The prices charged are considerably lower than other houses, and the quality very much superior.

BRITISH PLATE.

This article is "a perfect substitute for Silver." Many attempts have been made to procure it, but all have been failures. HEMS and SON, after considerable difficulty, have at last succeeded in bringing to perfection this most valuable metal, and can recommend it with confidence. It is harder and more durable than Silver, and its colour can scarcely be distinguished. The prices will be found less than one-tenth of silver.

DIRECTIONS FOR CLEANING BRITISH PLATE.—British Plate is harder and more durable than Silver, consequently not so liable to be scratched or bruised, and improves by age and use. Spoons, Forks, &c., after using, only require to be dipped in hot water and wiped dry; when otherwise cleaned, it may be done in the same manner as Silver, yet should they be neglected, oil and rotten-stone will readily restore them to their proper colour.

ELECTRO PLATED GOODS.

There is no doubt that this is the very best article, next to sterling Silver, that can be obtained, being a thick coating of real Silver plated by the Electro-process upon their British plate.

IMPERIAL METAL.

This beautiful Metal is at present confined to Table and Chamber Candlesticks. Its colour is so very bright as almost to give the appearance of Silver; it possesses, likewise, the very great advantage of not tarnishing as other Metals.

BRITANNIA METAL GOODS.

HEMS and SON invite particular attention to their Stock of Tea and Coffee Pots, which, for elegance of pattern, chasteness of design, and superiority of metal and workmanship, cannot be equalled by any house in the Trade. They are warranted to retain their shape and keep their colour, the inferior article which is so generally sold not being kept.

AMERICAN OVENS.

This very economical Oven develops a new application of the power of reflected heat, while it is not subject to any of the contingencies inseparable from all other domestic ovens. It never fails to bake whatever is put into it in as short a time as the best constructed brick oven, and in a most superior manner. Its effects are certain and invariable; without trouble or attention, all kinds of Pastry, Bread, Poultry, Fish, and Joints are baked, by merely placing the Oven before a coal fire, or a wood fire on a hearth.

What so refreshing and so invigorating as a bath! and where we ask is a bath so evidently desirable as in this densely populated metropolis? It braces the nerves, gives tone to the stomach, animates the countenance, and imparts a cheerfulness and vigour to the mind, which nothing else can supply.

FENDERS.

The immense variety which HEMS and SON have at all times, and the constant change in the patterns of Fenders, render it impossible to give the prices of but a small portion of them. The following scale, however, may be taken as a guide, and the prices generally will be found considerably lower than any other house.

HEMS and SON would just remark, that the Iron Goods sold by them hold the quantity stated, it being necessary to make this observation, as one or two houses in the trade are selling smaller for full sizes, as a decoy for parties to purchase other goods. H. and S. are entirely opposed to conducting business upon such a principle, and therefore parties purchasing from them may depend upon being supplied with articles containing just the measure which they are sold for.

ENAMELLED WARE.

The peculiarity of this Ware consists in substituting for the usual process of Tinning the inner surface of Saucepans, &c., a smooth, hard, durable white Enamel, closely resembling the finest Porcelain. The advantages of this invention are, those of the cleanliness and wholesomeness of glass or china, combined with the durability and cheapness of cast iron. The Patent Enamel is free from all impurity, requires no seasoning (as is necessary with Tin), will stand every exposure to fire, wears as long as the iron itself, and is cleaned after using as readily and thoroughly as a common drinking glass.

COPPER GOODS.

HEMS and SON would just observe, that the prices of Copper Goods are regulated by weight, and it very often happens that a very inferior article is substituted, having the same appearance to the eye. H. and S. would therefore advise their friends to be particular in the purchasing of Kettles, Coal Scoops, &c., as above one-half that is manufactured will need repairing, and very often replacing, in less than six months.

LAMPS.

HEMS and SON are confident that no Lamp is equal to "Palmer's Patent Candle Lamp," for in it are combined cleanliness, simplicity, and elegance. The pillars are now formed from the most elaborate designs, and of the most varied compositions, such as papier machie, opal, and Bohemian glass. They are also made of different sizes, suitable for rooms of any size.
